Daughters Of The State A Social Portrait Of The First Reform School For Girls In North America 1856 1905

Daughters of the State By Barbara M. Brown 1851-90 A rich and fascinating study of education, social reform, and women’s history, Daughters of the State explores the lives of young girls who came to the State Industrial School for Girls in Lancaster, Massachusetts during the first fifty years. Brenton skillfully integrates the complex lives of nineteenth-century social thought and policies formed around issues of work, schools, schooling and sexuality that have continued to this day. In the school’s handwritten case histories and lecture reports, she examines institutional norms and how those norms shaped the young and the poor and especially toward women. Brenton also reveals the plight of reformers who were forced by their circumstances to condone their children’s tactics in the struggle of improving their life conditions—Antonia Bresette Brown is Assistant Professor of Education and Department Chair at Wellesley College. Daughters of the State is an NCL Hammond joint center for Urban Education.
